What is being made abroad is told in our letters from London and Paris, and what is to be worn here this Winter is fully pictured and described in detail. Many pages are devoted to illustrations of fashionable hats, creations of the best houses, and the newest dress fabrics, trimmings and accessories. The Dressmaking and Needlework departments are invaluable to the woman who would be well gowned.

FOR HOUSEHOLD HELPS

"Household Helps" is a trite expression. Far from trite are the helps continually offered in The Delineator by able writers who suggest new thoughts in cooking, happy arrangements in furnishing and short cuts in all branches of housekeeping.

For Children's Stories and Pastimes

The Delineator's juvenile stories can really be enjoyed by children who read or are read to. The many suggestions offered keep little hands amusingly occupied, and teach Brilliant Stage Pictures in the Big Show Cecil Raleigh the Author-Gallery Shows Its Pro-Boer Sentiments Some Individual Hits Made by the Actors.

That pro-Boer sentiment still prevails in this city was demonstrated at the Academy of Music last night when Cecil Raleigh' big melodrama, "The Best of Friends," was produced under the management of Charles Frohman. The story-"a drama of modern life," said the house bills-deals with episodes in the late Boer war. Naturally, the playwright takes sides, though he has unconsciously made his Boer characters the most interesting.

Before typical London melodrama audiences the various patriotic speeches probably met with an enthusiastic reception; last night they fell as flat as Zion's appeal. The cause was not long concealed. In the last act, when the Boer general appeared, heavily bearded, dusty, but defiant, the gallery rose to a boy and lustily yelled. The war is over, but the feeling still lives.

Apart from that, the tale told is a disjointed, even rambling one, overloaded with details, often diverted from the broad and straight road which leads to melodramatic glory. But as a production no fault can be found with "The Best of Friends." Not at Drury Lane, where it is said to have achieved a success, could the scenic splendor have been surpassed. Ten scenes, solidly built, three of them really remarkable, lured the eve when the dialogue, stuffed with genuine heavy British wit, fell upon unheeding ears. A scene in Oxford, in the shadow of a historic college, was enlivened by a gorgeous circus parade, brass band and scarlet uniforms. Then there was a terraced lawn at the Duke's castle, charming in its pictorial evocation, and some realistic South African

The Duke's hall presented a novel spectacle when the Riverlea yeomanry regiment supped. There was revelry, there were speechmaking, gay uniforms, dazzling lights and all the usual happenings of a joyous evening. But there was no leader. The old Duke could not go to the front; his next and heir to the dukedom was a of kin, and heir to the dukedom was a tainted Little Englander! He spoke of peace while these gallant young dogs were fairly tugging at the leash to meet the enemy, the hated Boers. A sudden con-version—after hearing of English reverses, version—after hearing of English reverses, after listening to a sentimental appeal from the Duke, Joseph Wheelock, the wavering Earl of Amesburg avowed his loyalty in agitated accents. There were cheers—but only on the stage.

It was only the sight of the regiment pledging the Queen in robust fashion, and standing on their chairs and smashing their glasses after the toast, that set the audience applauding. There was no doubt about the stirring nature of the seene, and there was no doubt about the admirable stage management of Joseph Humphreys.

Thirty-five people were in the cast and many in the mob. Some of the former were not happily cast; yet there were individual hits. Agnes Booth, as an old circus rider, strong woman and parrot queen, was capital. She had her audience with her from start to finish. Her accent was ner from start to missi. Her accent was pure cockney, her humor unmistakable. Lionel Barrymore again displayed his skill in make up and, better still, charac-terization, as the Boer commander. Young Joseph Wheelock returns looking stronger, and acted with his foldtime effect a rather foolish and apprimental.

Katharine Grey was a fainting circus heroine, a defiant lady to aristocratic folk who patronized her and a red cross nurse at the last. Her resonant contralto did not fail her; what she had to do she did well.

Frank Burbeck, looking more than ever like James Gordon Bennett, was the Duke, every inch a Duke. Herbert Standing, Richard Bennett, Ralph Delmore, Prince Miller, Ray Rockman and Geoffrey Stein were all very busy, especially Mr. Delmore, who was hissed by the gallery for his compound villainy. Indeed, veteran theatregoers shuddered when he appeared at the lawn party in freck coat and top hat. lawn party in freek ceat and top hat. That always means devilish business on hand for Ralph Delmore!

IRVING HERE TO PLAY "DANTE." And for the First Time Ellen Terry Is Not With Him -Not His Last Tour, He Says.

Sir Henry Irving and the eighty-one persons who are to assist him in his tour here this winter arrived from England yesterday morning on the Minneapolis. This is the first tour that Sir Henry has ever made in this country without being accompanied by Miss Ellen Terry. He refuses to give it the particular interest that attaches to a farewell tour.

"I do not consider it that in any way," he said yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, "I shall probably return here for other tours, at least I hope so. Now that the Lyceum Theatre is no longer my property, I shall be more at liberty than ever to travel outside of England."

Sir Henry did not say so, but he probably appreciated the fact that he will in the future be able to enjoy the profits of his tours in this country without being compelled to share them with the stockholders of the Lyceum Theatre. That was his experience on his last two visits here. "There is no part in 'Dante,' written by Victorien Sardou for me, and by my son adapted," he said, "which suited Miss Terry adapted, he said, which sinted Miss Ferry at all. The principal parts are mother and daughter, to be played here by Miss Hackney and Miss Lancaster. The per-formance will be the same as that we gave at Drury Lane. The spectacular effects, especially the scene in hell, are the most wonderful I have ever been associated

This is my ninth visit to the United States. I hope that nobody will talk about it being my last. There are some cities yet that I have never visited here, and I am holding them in reserve, although this year I expect to go back to the places I have seen before. Nine trips are very few for a man to make to America, and I hope to make nine more."

Sir Henry and his company give the first performance of "Dante" next Monday night at the Broadway Theatre. The tour will then include Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Albany, Cleveland and other cities in the Middle West. The company will return in March to close the engagement. The Miss Hackney who appears in the company is the wife of Sir Henry's son, Laurence.

LAST NEW THEATRE'S OPENING. Daniel Frohman's New Lyceum to Begin Its Career on Monday Week.

The new Lyceum Theatre in Sixty-fifth street west of Broadway, last of the new playhouses to open this season, is to entertain its first audience on Monday week, Nov. 2, the night before election. The theatre has had more troubles in building than most of the others. It is ten stories high in the rear, for one thing, and its foundation required careful blasting.

Daniel Frohman will present E. H. Sothern in "The Proud Prince" for two weeks following the opening night. William Gillette in "The Admirable Crichton" will follow.

News of Plays and Players.

Chauncey Olcott is to follow "Babes in Toyland" at the Majestic Theatre when that spectacle has finished its run. He will appear in his new play, "Terence," in which he is having uncommon success in other cities.

in other cities.

The opening of Jessie Millward's engagement in "A Clean Slate" at the Madison Square Theatre has been changed from Monday week to election night, Nov. 3. At the Victoria the night before Frank Daniels will present "The Office Boy."

Following the run of "Checkers," which ends on Nov. 7, "The Worst Woman in London" will be produced at the American Theatre by R. S. Craerin, a Washington manager. A fire scene showing the burning of a house in London and the thrilling escape of the inmates is one of its minor sensations.

Tony Pastor to Keep an Anniversary.

Next Saturday will be Tony Pastor's twenty-second anniversary in his present theatre on Fourteenth street, and he announces that he proposes to celebrate it fittingly. Mr. Pastor moved from Broadway to Fourteenth street on Oct. 24, 1881.

Capt. Dooley denied any knowledge of the leak.

The alleged leak in police matters has been a source of complaint during the last few months, and it has been stated in open court that information has been printed in the afternoon papers within a short time after warrants have been issued and that on account of the information thus given the offenders have eluded the law. THEORY OF THE THOMPSON CASE. Maybe It's to Find Out Where Gilhooley's Money Got To.

Justice Mayer of Special Sessions was unable yesterday to give ex-Inspector Thompson a hearing on the extortion charge made by the widow of Sergeant Thomas F. Gilhooley. She has declared that Thompson made Gilhooley promise to pay him $2,500 for promotion, and that Mrs. Thompson got the assignment of Gilhooley's $2,000 life insurance policy in addition to payments made monthly The lawyers in the case are to fix a day for the resumption of the hearing. After leaving Justice Mayer Thompson was closeted with Assistant District Attorney Lord. A Tammany lawyer who watched him go into Mr. Lord's room said:

"My theory of this case is that Gilhooley had to pay to get his promotion and that he borrowed the money from Thompson, who took the life insurance policy as sewho took the life instrance poincy as se-curity. At that time Devery was Chief and Thompson was in favor. Mr. Lord don't think Thompson got the Gilhooley bribe, but that he knows to whom it went, and this proceeding is intended as an effort to get Thompson to give the name of the man 'higher up.'"

The Weather.

Clear weather was general yesterday over al the country. The pressure was high in the middle, south Atlantic and Guif States and the central Rocky Mountain States. The storm which had developed south of Florida had disappeared and the storm from the Lake regions had passed to the mouth of the St. Lawrence. It was warmer in all States, except Montana and North Dakota. In this city the day was clear and warmer; w light to fresh southerly; average humidity, 63 per cent.; barometer, corrected to read to sea level, at 8 A. M., 29.93; 3 P. M., 29.95.

Little Done to Remedy This Town's Torn Up Pavements Despite the Many Complaints About Them-Asphalt Companies Only Half Equipped for Work.

Complaints about the condition of Park row and other city thoroughfares along the line of the subway ditch were reported yesterday to be passing from desk to desk in the Department of Highways, seeking some city official who would dare to tell a rapid transit contractor to obey the law and keep within the conditions of his con-

These complaints to the Highways Department, which is supposed to be charged with the duty of seeing that the streets are kept in proper repair, have been growing more numerous in the last few mouths, as winter approaches and the chances of hurrying the work of cleaning up after ditching grow slimmer. They haven't been prolific of results yet, to put it mildly, because the department has troubles of its own, apart from the disgraceful conditions along the ditch banks.

As THE SUN told several weeks ago, is is many a long year since the street pavements of New York, ditch route inclusive, have been in a more thoroughly demoral ized condition than this summer found them in. The asphalt companies were far behind with repairs, being engaged in the more profitable work of laying down pavements in new streets, and every corporation having new projects concerning the city below streets had seized the opportunity for a tearing up spree to increase the mess. Seeing the subway contractors doing as they pleased, other contractors followed suit.

Conditions have improved very little since then, though when, after long endurance, a general cry arcse about the wretched state of the city pavements, the asphalt companies were hustled away from their profitable new work and made to get busy profitable new work and made to get busy repairing the ravages of traffic upon the ill laid pavements of past years. They have done something toward mending conditions, but it has not been much.

"The fact is," a man with every opportunity of knowing what is being done in city paving told The Sun reporter yesterday, "the companies have in half enough plant and equipment for their work. They're playing a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy, and they'il keep at it till the city insists on their performances coming a little nearer to promises than they have done till now.

"The companies are half equipped and

"The companies are half equipped and undermanned for the work they have to do, undermanned for the work they have to do, but they won't spend more money on plants till the city has forfeited a few contracts and collected damages for non-fulfilment of pledges. But the present department will have to be stirred up a good deal before it can be moved to do that."

Besides the mess all along the line of the ditch, which seems to get no better, pavements on the lower hast and lower West sides of town are in a very bad way. Grand sides of town are in a very bad way. Grand street east of the Bowery and a large section of lower Second avenue are torn up while the motive power of the Grand street car line is being changed to the under trolley system. Crosby street is in a simi-lar state from the same cause, and all over this most crowded section of town there are literally miles of bad and uptorn pave-ments awaiting restoration. ments awaiting restoration.

Conditions like these, in the most crowded part of town are dangerous to health. part of town are dangerous to health. The streets cannot be cleaned properly, where thorough street cleaning is more a necessity than anywhere else, vile odors increase and many thousand people directly suffer. Taking the lower East Side and the corresponding region only a few blocks west of Broadway alone, here are some of the other streets in which yesterday the pavements were torn up altogether for some reason or other, or were in such bad condition that the existing rayements hardly dition that the existing pavements hardly counted at all. Magistrate Naumer Blames Capt. Dooley and Talks of "Graft."

Magistrate Naumer in the Coney Island court summoned Police Captain Dooley before him yesterday and in open court demanded an explanation as to how the newspapers got hold of the fact that warrants had been issued for the arrest of alleged illegally registered men at the seaside.

"I have been informed," said the Magistrate, "that this information was consistency and the seaside.

"I have been informed," said the Magistrate, "that this information was consistency and the whole length of Thompson street between the car tracks.

tracks. The ditch is responsible for the vile condition of Elm street along the five blocks north of Canal street, but the Department of Highways is blamed for not compelling the ditchers to clear it for pavement long ago. Work on the subway at this point has been finished for months.

"If Tammany had a better record the Wigwam spellbinders could make a lot of votes out of the present condition of the streets, particularly on the East Side," said an East Side property owner yesterday. But folks remember, unfortunately for McClellan, that things were even worse under the Wigwam, and the Tiger's former friend, Jake Cantor, is the great authority on streets in this borough anyway. But there's not much excuse for the slackness of the Highways Department even then."
